

CHM 307 : JUNIOR SEMINAR

As the first of two capstone courses for chemistry and biochemistry majors, this course provides students with the opportunity to a) delve deeply into a current area of chemical or biochemical research, b) write a formal proposal for their own independent research project, c) carry out that research project, and d) communicate the results of their research via a formal oral presentations. Course is completed in the student's junior year. Offered every Spring Term. Major Credit.

2.000

Chemistry

Requirement for chemistry and biochemistry majors.
major credit