

CFS 302 : CHILD, YOUTH, AND FAMILY POLICY

This undergraduate course examines contemporary family life and the impact of government laws, policies, and programs on families over time and across contexts and cultures. It explores the intended and unintended consequences of policies for diverse families across a variety of policy matters, from anti-poverty and social welfare policies to health and environmental policies.

3.000

Child and Family Studies

GEP; Major